RESTRICTION

Restriction to one of the following inventions is required under 35 U.S.C. 121:

- I. Claims 1-7, drawn to a hydrogen gas detector calibration system, classified in class 73, subclass 1.02.
- II. Claims 8-10, drawn to a process for calibrating a hydrogen gas detector, classified in class 73, subclass 1.03.
- III. Claims 11-16, drawn to a process for operating an electrochemical system, classified in class 429, subclass 13.
- IV. Claims 17-20, drawn to a process for operating a hydrogen gas detector, classified in class 376, subclass 256.

The inventions are distinct, each from the other because of the following reasons:

Inventions I, II and IV are related as product and process of use. The inventions can be shown to be distinct if either or both of the following can be shown: (1) the process for using the product as claimed can be practiced with another materially different product or (2) the product as claimed can be used in a materially different process of using that product (MPEP § 806.05(h)). In the instant case, the product, invention I, is drawn to a hydrogen gas detector calibration system, while the process is for operating a hydrogen gas detector. Invention II is a process of calibrating a hydrogen gas detector, which is a process of using the detector. The product as claimed can be used in a materially different process of using that product including a process of calibrating a detector and a process of operating a detector. The process of using the detector in inventions II and IV are patentably distinct based on the operating steps.

Art Unit: 1745

Invention III is to a process for operating an electrochemical system, as compared with inventions I, II and IV are to a process for calibrating and operating hydrogen gas detector and detector calibration system. Inventions are unrelated if it can be shown that they are not disclosed as capable of use together and they have different modes of operation, different functions, or different effects (MPEP § 806.04, MPEP § 808.01). In the instant case the different inventions have different modes of operation, functions and effects based on the electrochemical system.

Because these inventions are distinct for the reasons given above and the search required for Group III is not required for Groups I, II, and IV, restriction for examination purposes as indicated is proper. Because these inventions are distinct for the reasons given above and have acquired a separate status in the art as shown by their different classification, restriction for examination purposes as indicated is proper. Because these inventions are distinct for the reasons given above and have acquired a separate status in the art because of their recognized divergent subject matter, restriction for examination purposes as indicated is proper.

Applicant is advised that the reply to this requirement to be complete must include an election of the invention to be examined even though the requirement be traversed (37 CFR 1.143).
